Here are some suggestions for choosing a veil:

When you are ready to choose a veil for your wedding, I would suggest to have a consultation with your Wedding Dress Consultant to find a perfect veil that would match your personal style and your wedding gown.

Please avoid purchasing a Plastic Comb for your veil. Plastic Combs are generally not secure for hair placement and will limit your hairstyle choices. If you have already purchased a Plastic Comb veil, you can carefully remove the thread that connects the veil to the Plastic Comb for your veil to become a Combless Veil.

Metal/Wire Comb Veil is flexible, good for various hairstyles, and always anchor into hair securely. This type of comb is the most ideal for long veils with the following lengths: floor, chapel, cathedral, and royal. However, it also works with short veils as well. Since this type of comb secures your hairstyle very well, it will be hard to remove and when you try to remove the veil, the comb will mess up your hairstyle.

However, we suggest to not use Metal/Wire Combs veil if you plan to also wear a Comb Style Central Hair piece. If you plan to wear this style, you will have two central combs together (one on the veil and one on the hair piece). Not only will this hairstyle make your hair heavy, it will also create an awkward gap in between the combs (you can imagine overlapping two spoons together). Therefore, we would recommend you to look for a Central Hair piece designed with a Split Comb system or a hair piece that does not feature a comb at all. By doing so, you will have the central hair piece and the Metal Comb veil stay in a secure position.

Combless Veil is the most comfortable veil, it will provide comfort for all the hairstyles and hair accessories that you will use for your wedding day. With a combless veil, you can easily remove the veil without messing up your hairstyle. While a combless veil is not as secure as a Metal/Wire Comb veil, it will be good to use this style for short veils with the following lengths: flyaway, shoulder, elbow, and fingertip.

If you would like recommendations on choosing hair pieces or your veil, you are always welcome to contact me. I am happy to offer advice and recommendations based on your hairstyle and hair type.
